Two United States soldiers, sightseeing in London, were walking down Whitehall. They wanted to see the war office but didn't know which side of the street to look. They hailed a passing Tommy and asked: "Which side is the war office on?" The Tommy thought a startled mome and replied, "Gorblimey! Ours, I think!"—Wichita (Kas.) Democrat.

A Momentous Step

In November, 200 delegates, representing insurance, industry and the medical profession, met under the auspices of the National Physicians Committee to discuss immediate extension of medical care, group insurance and employer-employee cooperation.

The uniqueness of such a conference has generally escaped public notice, as is usually the case on occasions of historic significance. For centuries the doctors have sought to solve the social problem of how to attain the widest distribution of medical care, practically unaided. They gave their talents freely to the impoverished. They urged people in nationwide campaigns to consult physicians when needed, and pointed out that financial necessity was no stumbling block to securing prompt attention.

But all of this was not enough, so the doctors turned to promoting prepaid medical care plans that today reach millions of persons. The recent meeting of the doctors with industry is a momentous step toward making the miracle of modern medicine even more easily available to all American homes and families. Now, as the doctors point out, it is up to industry to do its part in every way possible. Enlightened business leaders can help immeasurably in the establishment of sound health insurance programs. Surveys have shown that the people are ready and anxious to support voluntary group insurance wherever it is made available to them.

By cooperating in this movement industry and the medical profession are proving their progressiveness and spiking the claims of those who believe that government must care for the people by compulsory measures—at the expense of the people's liberty.

Pioneers Of Peace

Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker believes that just as the railroads were the foundation of the growth and unification of the states of our union, air transportation can be the foundation of international unity and economic development.

Already the airplane more than any other single instrument, has been responsible for the discarding of the extreme isolationism of pre-war America. People realize that if there is another war, no spot on this continent will be safe from the ravages of super-bombers. They have also begun to realize that the airplane can do far more than make the terror of war world wide; it can help mightily to make peace world wide.

In recent years American planes under the skilled guidance of pioneering American airmen, have opened up a global network of airways to the remotest sections of the earth. Silver-winged transports loaded with war materials soar over steaming, trackless jungles or leave vapory trails through frigid polar skies, with equal ease and regularity. No spot on the globe is more than hours by air from the center of the United States. Our pilots come home with intimate glimpses of life in other nations. Their friends are of every nationality. Their sympathies are universal. They see at first hand the superficiality of international boundaries. And in peacetime, when these pilots are permitted to carry civilians, their passengers will bring home the broad vision of the air age.

Yes, the airplane can bring peace as well as destruction. This country is fortunate in having an aviation industry second to none, which will never rest until the civilizing force of mass transportation has had a chance to work for the good of all people.

Don't Expect Too Much

Most schemes incubated in official quarters, professing to guarantee farm prosperity, involve expenditures of many billions of tax dollars. Sooner or later government is going to have to stop pouring out these uncounted billions for what in reality are nothing more than ill concealed attempts to cover up the increasing cost of producing food. When it does, the farmers will be on their own as never before. Millions of them are preparing for that inevitable day by strengthening their farmer-owned marketing cooperatives.

Will They Want Socialism Now?

The rapidity with which France was adopting socialism, or communism, previous to World War II, was causing economic instability in that nation. The will of the late Renault, owner of the great French automobile factory, left that property to its 40,000 workers. It will be interesting to see how they take to nationalization of the factory by DeGaulle, now that they are its owners. They now have a stake in private ownership, and may not wish to see "their property" absorbed by the state. The will caused a sensation in France.

It is noticeable that the most ardent socialist always wants the state to run the other fellow's business—how about his own.

What happens when a nation begins to live by the grace of government subsidies is indicated in the present position of dairy farmers. A large part of their income is now made up of subsidies. The Federal subsidy on milk is due to end March 31 unless the government sees fit to renew it.

Commenting on the situation, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association says: "Without advance knowledge that their returns for milk will be sustained, at least at present levels, either through price increases or subsidy continuance, farmers will be forced to abandon present expensive, but effective production practices. If this happens, more limitation will be necessary on civilian use of milk and there will be less butter and cheese. To regain high production levels once they decline would be costly and take a long time."

It is humiliating for American farmers to be dependent upon government handouts.

"Be It Ever So Humble"

"The right of ownership is more important than ownership itself!"

"True enough," says W. J. Blake, owner of the Putnam County, New York, Republican. "Yet how important is ownership—something tangible and of benefit to the family! Give me a family—or, even, only an individual—whose fixed objective is a home, a house and some land of their own, and I will then see reason to hope for the future of the family. Better a nation of such families than one of any other dominating form of prosperity. 'Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.' Millions who live in rented quarters, houses, hall rooms, and what not—are on unshakable force to our national life. The cry is—or should be—more home ownership and less hoobism in the American ways of living. To that end let press, pulpit and the schools of our beloved land raise a united voice."

CINEMATIC CHATTER

By Malcolm Miller

Slated for a two day run at the Everglades Theatre starting Sunday and Monday is "Atlantic City," which promises to be an interesting musical show that should be good entertainment for all classes.

Listed in the cast are, stars Constance Moore and Bradford Taylor and in support, Jerry Calton, Charles Grapewin, Paul Whitehead and Orville, Louis Armstrong and Orchestra Belle Baker, Gallagher and Shean, Van and Schekel, Joe Frisco and Robert Castine. The story has to do with a love affair in which the leading man almost loses the gal to another man who wants to join the gal on the stage. The leading man is Taylor, enlists and upon "is he," a news reel and short turn stages the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant. The pier single subject show I feel sure burns down and he loses his bankroll. Constance and her friends stage a big "Broadway Production" which gets him back his money and he wins and marries the gal. Cute, isn't it? Well . . . I think you'll like it. Tuesday-Wednesday brings another of those side splitting comedies from the Aldrich family. This one is "Henry Aldrich's Little Secret," and what a secret . . . Which I'm not going to tell, and thus ruin the whole show for you.

In the cast are Jimmy Lydon, and Charles Smith, starred, and Joan Mortimer, John Littel and Olive Blackney, lending excellent support. All players act themselves handsomely in the roles they portray and the piece, as I said in the start is a riot. On this same program is a very interesting "March of Time," a news reel and short turn stages the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant. The pier single subject show I feel sure that this feature, which is an excellent comedy vehicle, will prove ample entertainment to all the customers.

Thursday-Friday I find as the feature, "Pantomime Lady" which stars Ella Raines and Franchot Tom and features Alan Curtis, Regis Toomey, Thomas Gomez, Andrew Tomba and Elisha Cook, Jr.

According to the story, Scott Henderson faces death in the electric chair because he cannot produce the "Phantom lady" with whom he spent the hours during which his estranged wife was strangled to death. His former secretary and a police inspector believe him innocent and trap the murderer into a confession. It's a good mystery.

On this same program is slated an interesting short "Popular Science" and a "This Is America," in addition to the news.

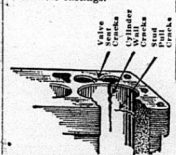

Saturday we find "Return of the Rangers" which stars Dave O'Brien and Jim Newell and from reports and story outline, I would say it is an action Western that will please all lovers of this type show.

See you at the movies—Mal.

Our boys must keep on fighting—we must keep on buying WAR BONDS until victory is won. Keep on BACKING THE ATTACK.

Study of By-Products From Vegetables Is Provided For University

A new major industry for Florida developed from the by-products of its vegetables is one object sought by the Florida Vegetable Committee in its 1945 legislative program based on a state expenditure of $40,000 annually for research at the University of Florida, it was stated by LaMonte Graw, Committee manager, on his return from Tallahassee where the State Budget Commission approved the proposal for submission to the State Legislature.

The Budget Commission, in addition, gave its blessing to a proposed $10,000 annual appropriation for studies of vegetable grading, packaging, handling and transportation improvements, and approved budget increases ranging from 10 to 30 per cent for the various vegetable experiment stations, including $12,500 for new studies on the sandy soils of the lower east coast.

Pointing out that much too little has been publicized of the high nutritive values of Florida crops, Graw said the new State Legislature would be asked to finance a research program that would result in the production of such by-products from waste vegetables as vitamins, pigments, essential oils, pectins, acids, fla-vorings, etc.

"If ever there is to be a new major industry for Florida," Graw said, "it will come from her vegetable and fruit products.
A very-high percentage of our State income comes from these two sources and, until recently we have done very little research on food products."

"A majority of research to date has been to improve on methods of culture to make two vegetables grow where one grew before. Now we have reached the place where it is necessary that we show the producer what to do with this second vegetable now that he has grown it and has no fresh market for it."

Possibilities Of Guavas In Home Use To Be The Subject of Club

Mrs. Thomas Bregger presided over the January session of the Woman's Home Demonstration Club at the Woman's Club on Thursday. The program for the year was planned and hostesses assigned by the president. Mimeograph copies were given out to members and those who did not receive theirs will receive them at the next regular meeting.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Hooker in Chosen with Mrs. N. T. Nelson as co-hostess. It will be an all day session starting at 10:30 o'clock. The topic for discussion will be "The Guava, uses of guava guavas". The demonstration will be on the main dish for the dinner, a chicken loaf as a substitute for high point meat, and dessert of guava. Members are requested to bring green salads to the next regular meeting.

War Bonds and the Farmer

by J. L. Tennant
Head, Dept. of Agricultural Economics
Rhode Island State College

Sound farm management suggests that funds should be reserved now to provide for depreciation, for insurance against risks, and for expenses of future bad years. The purchase of War Bonds is one of the best ways to conserve such savings. Every experienced farmer knows he must keep buildings in repair, and that machinery wears out or becomes obsolete. In our present crisis, many of the outlays needed to maintain the farm plant must be deferred. The lumber, minerals and chemicals now produced and our skilled and unskilled labor must be used to produce foods and fibers, build ships, make airplanes, and provide the other goods and services essential to the prosecution of the war.

As our farm machinery gets older, as buildings go without repair, and with minimum attention to other repairs, these needs grow. When the war is over, our industries again will produce goods. Saving money and building a reserve through the purchase of War Bonds now, will enable a farmer to buy the equipment and the other goods and services which then will be available.

Savings Are Beneficial
The savings from current income should include funds to replace household equipment and furnishings, to buy new equipment, and to install a water system, a central heating plant, electricity, or some other service which will add to the convenience and comfort of family living.

A backlog of War Bonds will help to carry the farm business through a year in which expenses exceed the returns. Farming is subject to many hazards. A few of the risks are price changes, unfavorable weather, the threat of disease, the attack of a destructive insect, and the sudden illness of the operator. Growers of cash crops are particularly subject to these risks. Savings set aside during years when prices are relatively high, will help to carry the business through a year when returns are small. A potato grower who put part of his receipts from the 1942 and 1943 crops into War Bonds will find such a reserve is extremely helpful in a year of low prices. A few hundred dollars in War Bonds are very useful when the farm family faces an emergency as a result of a serious illness or accident. In planning for the future of the family or the business, each farm operator will find reserves for a specific purpose are desirable. With one it will be a provision for the education of children; with another, funds for retirement may be important. With a young man especially, such reserves will furnish the first payment for the purchase of a farm. A farmer who owns the land he operates will find such a fund useful if and when an opportunity to purchase additional land develops.

Saving Time Varies
The time of the year when money to buy War Bonds is available varies with the type of farming. On dairy farms income usually is received monthly or bi-monthly. The expenses of the poultry farmer are heavy during the months that chickens are being raised. Producers of cash crops have large outlays during the planting and growing season.

But deposits in War Bonds are continuous. Therefore, irrespective of the type of farming, definite provision should be made to reserve War Bonds part of the receipts from sales of crops, livestock, or live stock products. United States War Bonds may be bought in various amounts and are redeemable. For every $5.00 invested, $4.00 will be returned at the end of 10 years. They are also subject to the interest rate controls, favorably with that from savings bonds. Investors in War Bonds help to finance the war. Following the war, such savings will provide the farm operator with the cash to buy improvements for his land and home, to educate his children, and to do the other things which he may wish to undertake, at a time when loans may be difficult to obtain.

Algebra, Spanish, and other subjects in high school. She received credits for her effort but she can't speak or read, and she doesn't like it and switches to something else. The same holds true with her courses at the Florida State College for Women; she takes a subject, then drops it for something else and consequently never learns much of anything that will be of practical use to her later in life. It is all over my head, and being a dumb clerk of a layman and taxpayer, maybe I'm not supposed to know.

In talking with Colin English the other day I pointed out that the Army had taught our kids more in less time than the schools had been able to teach them in years, but he slapped me down with the explanation that they did it by taking many of the best teachers and providing all the funds they needed for the job. This is probably true. Anyhow, the citizens school committee has a real job to do.

with the full cooperation of the school officials, the Governor and the public, I am confident they will do it. I, for one, wish them all the luck in the world and urge the people to back them up in their effort.

The topic for discussion was Nutrition and Bread Making. Miss Bertha Nill Hausman, County Home Demonstration Agent, presented a flannel picture demonstration of a model days meals using products from each of the seven basic foods at each meal. She pointed out that with food shortages in prospect it was up to the housewife to see that her family are properly nourished with the protective foods and foods necessary to growth and development and to conserve foods for future use. The outlined ways by which the various canning centers should be utilized. The center in this area is at the Osceola Camp and facilities open to all.

The demonstration by Mrs. W. R. Hooker and Mrs. J. I. Freeland was on yeast breads and rolls. Loaf bread was made by the standard recipe with various types of rolls including the Swedish rolls were demonstrated as a means of having fresh rolls with a minimum of effort on successive days. Mrs. Hing. J. Bratley and Mrs. E. H. Borchardt were the hostesses for the afternoon and served refreshments to Mrs. Berger, Miss Hausman, Mrs. Hooker, Mrs. Freeland, Mrs. F. W. Mutchler, Mrs. M. L. 'Too Late To Clasp

The citizens school committee, appointed by Spessard Holland with the full approval of Governor Millard Caldwell and the State Department of Education, seems to be taking its job seriously and if it continues to function as it has started, much good should result.

We should not lose sight of the fact that the schools are a matter of direct concern to all the people. The schools do not belong to the Department of Education, the trustees, the Educational Association or the teachers. They belong to the people, the taxpayers, and it is proper and fitting that the people themselves should have the last word as to their operation.

When the committee was appointed and announced in the press, the impression was given that it was an "investigation committee" but if my information is correct, it is nothing of the sort, but rather a planning committee, appointed at the suggestion of Colin English and having his full cooperation, operating with the full approval of school authorities who welcome its deliberations as a means of arousing general public interest and advancing plans for the improvement of facilities and operations for the public welfare.

School officials and public concern that there is plenty of room for improvement in connection with Florida's school system. The problems can only be solved when complete knowledge of conditions and objectives are understood and appreciated both by officials and the public and it is the hope of the Governor and the Department of Education that citizens committee will bring all interests closer together and accomplish the desired end. On several occasions Governor Caldwell called attention to the fact that Florida students appointed to Annapolis or West Point found it necessary to attend prep schools prior to taking examinations.

Offhand, this might seem to indicate that Florida's educational system was lax, but this is no reflection on Florida, for the same condition exists in every other state and most appointees to these academies, they from Florida or elsewhere, find it necessary to take preparatory courses before submitting themselves to the stiff examinations of either Annapolis or West Point. I can speak with authority, as my brother was appointed to Annapolis by Senator Fletcher. He graduated as an honor student from Hillsborough High School in Tampa but felt it imperative that he take a preparatory course at Severn Academy, which he did. He might have passed the examinations successfully without such preparatory work, but because he wanted to make sure, he went to Severn for six months as do students from every state in the Union.

There are at least a dozen preparatory schools that exist solely on their ability to train boys to pass the examinations at Annapolis and West Point and their clientele comes from appointees in every state, so if Florida is lax so are all states.

I simply mention this in an effort to clarify the picture and it is not my purpose or intention to imply that Florida's schools are up to the standard or should be or that improvements it is not possible or desired.

The problem of finances is one that calls for careful consideration. I believe that everyone agrees that our teachers deserve an increase in pay. We cannot expect to obtain able and competent teachers unless we pay them a living wage and anyone familiar with the situation today must admit that they are underpaid. Not being an "educator" and never having attended Teachers College or Columbia, I probably am not qualified to discuss the subject of education, but as a parent and a taxpayer, I cannot help but feel that there is a lot of waste motion and waste effort in connection with the present day system. We do a heap of a lot of so-called teaching that fails to result in what the country folks term "learnin'". My daughter, for example, studies

IT'S THE AMERICAN WAY...

WHEN dictatorships were faced with the task of distributing food and goods made scarce by war emergencies, they went about it in their typical manner in which the rights of the public were ruthlessly thrust aside.

But we do things differently in the United States... Three years ago, you, your friends and neighbors VOLUNTEERED to tackle the job without pay. After all, you said, we're all in this together, it is up to us to solve these problems together... In the American Way.

Countless hours have been given to eliminate potential injustices, to satisfy, as far as possible, the demands and needs of every one... and in our distinctly American manner, every case has been treated as an individual one.

...for after all, that is one of the things we are fighting for — the right of the individual to survive, and not be swallowed by the state.

And so, on this Third Anniversary of the War Price and Rationing Boards, it is fitting that they be given all acclaim for doing one of the necessary, if not pleasant, jobs, of the war in a truly American Way.
